NYS Council of School Superintendents praises Governor Cuomo's selection of Jere Hochman as top education policy aide

Governor Andrew Cuomo has made an excellent choice in selecting Jere Hochman to be his new chief education aide.

Jere has done exceptional work throughout his career in education and most recently as superintendent of the Bedford public schools in Westchester County. He has also been an extremely active member of our organization and we have valued the energy and creativity he has brought to efforts to make state policy work for the children it is intended to benefit.

We are certain that our state and all our schoolchildren will be well-served by Jere Hochman's efforts in his new position. We will do all we can to help him succeed.

Robert J. Reidy, Jr.
Executive Director
New York State Council of School Superintendents

The New York State Council of School Superintendents is a professional and advocacy organization with over a century of service to school superintendents and assistant superintendents in New York State. The Council provides more than 800 members with professional development opportunities, publications and personal support while advocating for public education and the superintendency.
